About HomeAid Northern California

HomeAid Northern California is a non-profit provider of housing for today’s homeless. HomeAid builds and renovates multi-shelter units for homeless families and individuals so they can rebuild their lives. As the charity arm of the building industry, HomeAid’s work is made possible through the generosity of homebuilders, their trade partners, financial institutions, and you. HomeAid’s primary focus is on the women, children, veterans and families who experience a life-altering event and are rendered temporarily homeless due to circumstances beyond their control.

HomeAid's mission is: "building new lives for Northern California’s homeless families and individuals through housing and community outreach." Every HomeAid project includes support services that help residents move toward self-sufficiency.
