Miller Starr Regalia (MSR), a preeminent California real estate law firm for more than 50 years, announced today it has launched a new website that is reflective of the firm's breadth of real property legal services. The new site conveys the firm's in-depth knowledge, including the most widely used and judicially recognized real estate treatise in California as well as the firm's philanthropic commitment to support the communities in which it works.

MSR's new website provides comprehensive information and insight into the firm's litigation, land use and transactional practice areas, the attorneys' diverse backgrounds that combine to form a dynamic combination of seasoned experience and distinct proficiency and history focusing on how the firm became a leading real estate law advisor.

"The new website reflects our growth as a firm with the capability to service our clients in a highly regulated state with very complex real estate laws," said Ella K. Gower, managing shareholder at MSR. "The new site is more reflective of who MSR is today, a young, energetic group able to provide exceptional legal services to clients of all sizes, from Fortune 500 companies to individuals, including developers, homebuilders, lenders, media companies, educational institutions, government agencies, privately held companies and real estate investors."

Other highlights of the site:

- "The Book" 50th anniversary revised edition, MSR's well-known legal treatise, Miller & Starr, California Real Estate.
- "CEQA Developments" and "Land Use Developments", two established and well-respected blogs;
- Kennedy-King Memorial College Scholarship Fund, co-founded by Ed Regalia (MSR co-founder), provides annual college scholarships to minority students, with financial need, who have demonstrated academic success at one of the three community colleges in Contra Costa County, and other organizations MSR supports;

"While paying homage to our 50-year history, we want a website that is engaging, easy to navigate and focused on the 21st century real property issues our clients face every day," said Gower.

The website was designed by Moiré Marketing Partners.
