One Year After The LA Fires: Rebuilding, Recovery, And Resilience In The Midst Of A Housing Crisis

Related Lawyers: Carolyn Nelson Rowan

On January 7, 2025, a series of fires began that ripped through Southern California, leaving significant destruction in their wake. The Eaton Fire in Altadena, the Palisades Fire in Pacific Palisades, and other fires in the Los Angeles area (collectively, “the LA Fires”) killed at least 31 people and destroyed many thousands of homes and structures, displacing thousands. This disaster occurred against the backdrop of an ongoing, statewide housing crisis, which added to the urgency of recovery and rebuilding efforts.
