Bryan advises and represents clients on a wide range of complex land use, environmental compliance, and government law issues. He takes a practical approach to helping his clients efficiently and strategically obtain their objectives at all stages in the development process. He is a regular contributor to industry publications, helps guide state land use and housing law, speaks on land use issues nationwide, and has been widely quoted in the news media. Bryan is principal author of Miller Starr Regalia's Land Use Developments Blog.

Bryan Wenter is a shareholder in Miller Starr Regalia's Walnut Creek office and a member of the firm's Land Use Department. His practice centers on land use, environmental compliance, and local government law, with a focus on obtaining, defending, and implementing land use entitlements throughout California for a wide range of complex development projects including mixed-use, master-planned and custom residential communities, hotels, retail/commercial, sports and entertainment, industrial, and educational. He has extensive experience with housing production statutes such as the Housing Accountability Act, Density Bonus Law, and Senate Bill 330 and is actively involved in ongoing legislative efforts to strengthen such laws.

He represents and provides strategic advice to developers, homebuilders, landowners, and public agencies in all aspects of land use, including obtaining approvals of general plan amendments, specific plans, planned development zoning and re-zoning, subdivision maps, conditional use permits, variances, and other approvals. He also assists his clients in connection with California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA) compliance, securing vested rights, drafting land use initiatives, exactions and impact fees, water supply, eminent domain, land use due diligence, and negotiating, drafting, and obtaining approval of various agreements, including development agreements, affordable housing agreements, and subdivision improvement agreements. He also has substantial experience with the Permit Streamlining Act, Coastal Act, takings law, redevelopment, annexations, Geologic Hazard Abatement Districts, Business Improvement Districts, Community Facilities Districts, the Religious Land Use and Institutionalized Persons Act (RLUIPA), the Telecommunications Act, surplus property disposition, and easements and boundary disputes. He has also helped draft several recent housing production statutes.

Bryan previously served as City Attorney and Assistant City Attorney for the City of Walnut Creek. In representing Walnut Creek, Bryan advised the City Council, Planning Commission, City Manager, department heads, and staff on all aspects of municipal law, including the Planning and Zoning Law, Subdivision Map Act, CEQA, elections, public finance, public contracts, constitutional matters, Ralph M. Brown Act, Public Records Act, Political Reform Act, telecommunications, ethics, conflicts of interest, risk management, and code enforcement. He has also represented many other public agencies as outside special land use counsel.

Bryan is the current co-chair of the East Bay Leadership Council's Housing Task Force and recently served on the editorial board for The Municipal Law Handbook, published by the League of California Cities. He is a member of the American Bar Association (ABA) and served on the executive committee of ABA's Section of State and Local Government Law. He is past multi-term chair of the Section's Land Use Planning & Zoning Committee and co-chair of its Exactions and Impact Fees Subcommittee. He served as the secretary/treasurer of the American Planning Association's Planning & Law Division and as the division's newsletter editor, as well as the Legislative Director of the Northern California Chapter of the American Planning Association.

Bryan is principal author of Miller Starr Regalia's Land Use Developments blog.

Bryan is a member of the American Institute of Certified Planners (AICP).

Prior to law school, Bryan served as a U.S. Peace Corps volunteer in Papua New Guinea.
