PRACTICE AREAS

Commercial & Business Litigation

Commercial Lease Disputes

Allison is a shareholder who has experience in business and real estate litigation at both the state and federal levels. She is known for working in close collaboration with clients, including owners, developers, retailers, and managers, in helping them navigate corporate and real estate issues.

Allison Wopschall is a Litigation Shareholder in Miller Starr Regalia's Walnut Creek office. Allison's practice focuses on business disputes and negotiation in the areas of contracts, commercial leasing, real estate transactions, partnership disputes, and environmental contamination, among other areas. Allison also represents clients in eminent domain and inverse condemnation proceedings. Her clients include property owners, developers, managers, national retailers, tenants, and financial institutions, among others. She has significant experience in both state and federal courts at the trial and appellate court levels, as well as in arbitration and judicial reference proceedings. Allison is a zealous advocate for her clients and works in close collaboration with them to achieve cost-effective and creative solutions to their most pressing legal issues.

Allison is also proud to serve as the Chair of Miller Starr Regalia's Diversity Committee.

Prior to joining Miller Starr Regalia, Allison worked as a litigator in the San Francisco office of Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher LLP.

In her free time, Allison enjoys playing indoor soccer, hiking, and spending time with her family.
